The percentage of incoming freshman student-athletes in Division I who were partial qualifiers under NCAA Bylaws 14.3.1 and 14.3.2 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)] changed only slightly between 1987 and 1988, according to the annual study of Division I partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers conducted by the NCAA Research Committee.

members admitting them increased slightly.

This year's study also includes a report on Division II partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers for the first time. A total of 206 of the 294 Division I institutions participated in the study, while 91 of the 192 Division II institutions responded.

Division I

The percentage of institutions that admitted partial qualifiers also increased only slightly—from 61.4 percent of the responding institutions in 1987 to 64.6 percent this year. Those institutions reported admitting at least one partial qualifier.

nonqualifiers. In 1988, only 29 institutions admitted nonqualifiers, and the total dropped to 67.

Partial qualifiers are prospective student-athletes who did not meet the requirements of Bylaw 14.3.1 (core-curriculum requirement and/or test-score requirement) but who earned an overall grade-point average of 2.000 or better in high school. Nonqualifiers are those who met none of those requirements.

Of the total number of black student-athletes who were recruited by and admitted to Division I institutions last fall, 85.5 percent were qualifiers and thus eligible to participate in their freshman year. Of the total number of white student-athletes, 97.8 percent were qualifiers.

In 1987, 65 percent of all Division I partial qualifiers were black, and the 1988 figure is comparable - 65.5 percent.

The 14.5 percent of the black student-athletes who were partial qualifiers or nonqualifiers breaks down this way: 9.5 percent failed to achieve the minimum test score, 2.2 percent did not meet the core-curriculum requirement and 2.8 percent failed to meet either minimum.

The 2.2 percent of the white student-athletes who were partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers was composed of 1.3 percent who failed the test-score minimum, 0.8 percent who missed on the core requirement and 0.1 percent who failed both.

In Division I, football and men's basketball accounted for 53 percent of the partial qualifiers, with 47 percent in the other sports. There were 238 partials in football and 60 in men's basketball.

In 1987, football players accounted for 34.1 percent of all partial qualifiers; in 1988, that percentage was 42.3. From another angle, 9.1 percent of all recruited freshmen in football who enrolled in 1988 were partial qualifiers, compared to 6.1 percent a year earlier.

Much of that increase was from student-athletes who did not meet the core-curriculum requirement.

That rate nearly tripled from 1987, while the percentage not meeting the test-score requirement also rose, but not as dramatically.

Among the women's sports in Division I, basketball again reported the most partial qualifiers, with 38 of the 113 women partial qualifiers. The women's number represents 20.1 percent of the total. A year earlier, there were 125 women partial qualifiers, for 27.4 percent of the total.

Those who work in the “trenches” of compliance work — financial aid and admissions officers, faculty athletics representatives, associate and assistant athletics directors, recruitment supervisors, coaches, and high school principals and counselors are being invited to join conference administrators as participants in a series of NCAA-sponsored compliance seminars.

The seminars, which begin in April at sites around the country, will be hosted by the Association's compliance services department and various conferences. They are specifically designed for conference administrators and representatives of NCAA member institutions in all divisions, including administrators who work outside of athletics departments.

fort to collect advice systematically from administrators who are experienced in compliance work and to distribute that advice to others in the field.

"This is the first time we've tried nationally to garner information from people at institutions, then distribute that information to people at other institutions," said Terri D. Riffe, NCAA assistant director of compliance services.

The effort began in February, when compliance services hosted a series of round-table discussions involving experienced administrators from all divisions.

Two-tiered program round-table discussions and make it available through seminars to anyone involved in compliance efforts.

During the round-table discussions, participants were asked to provide suggestions for dealing with the following aspects of compliance:

- Certifying initial and continuing eligibility.
- Administering financial aid.
- Monitoring recruitment.
- Using computers.
- Defining the role of the institutional compliance officer.

Written summaries of administrators' responses to the questions will be made available to those who attend the upcoming seminars, Riffe said. The summaries will serve as materials for discussion in scheduled "breakout sessions," where moderators representing the NCAA, conferences or member institutions will be present.

ding compliance responsibilities and issues inherent in developing and improving those systems," Riffe said. "For example, what are all of the basic elements or the necessary steps in certifying initial eligibility, including checks and balances and overall accountability?"

To get a handle on developing such systems, participants in the seminar will learn about the NCAA's compliance services, including the compliance reviews that are available on request to member institutions. Discussion about conference compliance activities and the administration of required NCAA forms and records also is planned.

The seminars also will focus on providing rules education and maintaining a "compliance environment" through institutional control.

Who should attend?

"The seminars should be of particular interest to financial aid and admissions officers, including registrars, and those persons who handle the daily responsibilities for eligibility and financial aid within those offices; faculty representatives; associate and assistant athletics directors; compliance specialists; recruitment supervisors; head coaches, and high school principals and counselors," Riffe said.

"Some of these people sometimes are overlooked in the evaluation of compliance programs," she said.

The seminar also should benefit conference representatives by "getting them more involved in the compliance efforts of their member institutions," Riffe said.

One hoped-for result of the seminars is improved sharing of information between member institutions, conferences and the NCAA national office, she added.

The first conference is set for April 11-12 at the Marriott Park Center in Dallas. The host conference

1989 Column No. 11

NCAA Bylaw 14.6—Division III transfer eligibility

NCAA Division III member institutions are reminded that 1989 Convention Proposal No. 115 amended Bylaws 14.6.1 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(7), (8) and (10)], 14.6.4.2 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(10)], 14.6.4.2.1 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(11)], 14.6.4.3 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(k)], 14.6.5.1 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(7)], 14.6.5.4.1 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(12)] and 14.6.6 [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(1)] to permit a student-athlete who transfers from a two-year or four-year collegiate institution to a Division III member institution to be immediately eligible for regular-season and championships competition upon transfer. One effect of the proposal is that a transfer student from a junior college to a Division III member institution is permitted to compete at the junior college and the Division III institution in a sport during the same academic year.

Please note that the adoption of Proposal No. 115 does not suspend the application of Bylaw 13.1.1.3 [formerly Bylaw 1-2-(h)]. Consequently, Division III member institutions may not make contact with the student-athlete of another four-year collegiate institution, directly or indirectly, without first obtaining the permission of the first institution's director of athletics to do so, regardless of who makes the initial contact. If permission is not granted, the Division III institution may not encourage the transfer and may not provide financial assistance to the student-athlete until the student-athlete has attended the Division III institution for one academic year. If permission is granted to contact the student-athlete, all applicable NCAA recruiting rules apply.

NCAA Bylaw 16.02.3—extra benefits to student-athletes after eligibility is exhausted

In accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 16.02.3 [formerly NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)], an extra benefit is any special arrangement by an institutional employee or representative of the institution's athletics interests to provide a student-athlete or the student-athlete's relative or friend a benefit not expressly authorized by NCAA legislation. Receipt of a benefit by a student-athlete or the relatives or friends is not a violation of NCAA legislation if it is demonstrated that the same benefit is generally available to the institution's students or their relatives or friends.

The NCAA Council recently confirmed an interpretation of Bylaw 16.02.3 that a representative of a member institution could employ a former student-athlete after graduation and the student-athlete could be involved in a legitimate business arrangement with the representative; however, it would not be permissible for the representative to provide the student-athlete cash or other gifts subsequent to the completion of the student-athlete's eligibility. Such extra benefits would be considered impermissible recruiting inducements.

NCAA Bylaw 14.3—national testing dates

Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 14.3.1.1-(b) [formerly Bylaw 5-1-(j)-Note-(i)], the minimum score on the SAT or ACT examination must be achieved under normal testing conditions on a national testing date [i.e., no residual (campus) testing is permitted]. The testing date must be a national (as distinguished from regional) testing date.

Following are the SAT and ACT examination dates remaining for students entering during the 1989-90 academic year:

SAT	ACT
March 11, 1989	April 15, 1989
May 6, 1989	June 10, 1989
June 3, 1989

Member institutions are encouraged to contact the SAT or ACT offices directly in reference to the administration of these examinations.

Championship nominated for Emmy

CBS-TV has been nominated for a sports Emmy for its coverage of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Tournament in 1988, it was announced March 13 in New York by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

ABC received 27 nominations, followed by NBC with 24 and CBS with 21. The three networks accounted for 72 of the 92 nominations in six major categories.

ESPN received seven nominations.

The Emmys will be awarded April 10 in New York. The program will be televised later that month on a syndicated network.

Four-team holiday tournament set

A new NCAA Division I holiday basketball tournament, featuring Massachusetts and a changing cast of teams each year, will be launched in December 1990.

A three-year agreement for the Hall of Fame Holiday Classic, to be played at the Springfield Civic Center, was announced March 13 at a news conference at the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Boston College, Dartmouth and Northwestern will join Massachusetts for the first tournament December 28-29, 1990.

Massachusetts, Iowa State, Tulane and Fairfield will compete December 27-28, 1991; and Massachusetts, South Carolina, Alabama-Birmingham and Holy Cross will play December 28-29, 1992.

institutions, 46.2 percent admitted partial qualifiers on grants. The Division I figure was 64.5 percent.

Football also contributed the largest number of Division II partial qualifiers, with 139. That number represents 40.2 percent of the 346 partials reported in the division. Men's basketball had 29.

In Division II women's sports, there were 81 partial qualifiers, or 23.4 percent of the division total. Women's track had the most with 23.

Blacks accounted for 49.7 percent of all partial qualifiers in Division II, while white student-athletes represented 46.6 percent. Of all recruited Blacks receiving athletics grants, 69.8 percent were qualifiers, while 93 percent of whites met the standards.

Twelve of the Division II schools reported that they had enrolled a total of 53 nonqualifiers.

Tables accompanying this article reflect the complete results of the study for both divisions.

New rules in effect for Divisions II, III sports camps, clinics

As the result of voting at the January Convention, several new rules are in effect for member institutions in Divisions II and III that sponsor sports camps or instructional clinics.

Divisions II and III approved Proposal No. 85 as amended, which resulted in changes in the rules pertaining to the definition of a camp, the awarding of free or reduced admission privileges, the employment of student-athletes as counselors and restrictions on the participation of athletics staff members in camps. The changes will appear in Bylaw 13.12 of the new NCAA Manual.

Division I, however, rejected the proposal, meaning that its rules pertaining to sports camps and clinics remain unchanged.

The proposal, which was sponsored by the NCAA Council, featured recommendations from the Association's Recruiting Committee.

The committee based its recommendations partly on a desire to eliminate the participation of athletics staff members in "outside camps," particularly those sponsored or conducted in any sport by an individual or organization that provides recruiting or scouting services concerning prospective student-athletes.

Committee members reasoned that coaches who participate in such camps as counselors or instructors potentially enjoy a recruiting advantage as a result of personal contact with prospects.

The Recruiting Committee also hoped to loosen restrictions on an institution's ability to hire its student-athletes as camp counselors.

Differences

As a result of the Convention vote on Proposal No. 85, the following differences now exist between Division I and Divisions II and III under Bylaw 13.12:

- The definition of a sports camp or clinic in Divisions II and III was simplified to state that it "shall be any camp or clinic that is owned or operated by a member institution or an employee of the member institution's athletics department, either on or off its campus."

By contrast, the definition for Division I includes any camp (1) operated by a member institution, either on or off its campus; (2) involving one or more of the institution's athletics department personnel on a full- or part-time basis, or (3) merely utilizing the institution's facilities.

- Schools in Divisions II and III

now are limited to conducting a football or basketball camp or clinic during the summer vacation period, unless it is a developmental clinic as defined in Bylaw 13.11.3.1. There is, however, no restriction on when Division I schools may conduct a sports camp or clinic or when Divisions II and III institutions may conduct camps or clinics in sports other than football or basketball.

- Divisions II and III institutions, members of their staffs and representatives of their athletics interests are now prohibited from employing or giving free or reduced admission privileges to any individual who has started classes for the ninth grade.

In Division I, however, the rule remains unchanged: Employment or free or reduced admission privileges cannot be given to a high school (including ninth grade), preparatory school or two-year college student who is an athletics award winner.

- Unlike Division I, which continues to prohibit men's basketball or football players from being employed or otherwise participating in their member institutions' basketball or football camps, Divisions II and III now permit employment in all camps and clinics.

The school, however, must meet the following conditions: (1) The student-athlete's duties must be of a "general supervisory character," with coaching or officiating assignments representing no more than half of the work time; (2) compensation "shall be commensurate with the going rate" for counselors of the same teaching ability and camp experience; (3) the student-athlete shall not participate in organized practice activities, and (4) its athletics director must give prior approval to the employment arrangement.

- As sought by the Recruiting Committee, athletics staff members at member institutions in Divisions II and III now are prohibited from working either on a salaried or a volunteer basis at a camp or clinic "that is established, sponsored or conducted by an individual or organization that provides recruiting or scouting services concerning prospective student-athletes." The prohibition applies to all sports.

Division I, meanwhile, continues to prohibit only members of a basketball coaching staff from accepting employment or lecturing at "outside camps" that provide recruiting or scouting services.

'Senior prospects'

Regulations regarding the involvement of "senior prospects" in camps remained unchanged by action at the Convention.

Such prospects still are not permitted to "enroll, participate or be employed" at member institutions' sports camps or clinics; however, senior prospects are permitted to participate in the developmental clinics outlined in Bylaw 13.11.3.1.

Further information about NCAA rules pertaining to sports camps and clinics can be obtained from the Association's legislative services staff at the national office.

Lone Star, SWC sign advisory agreement

Officials of the Lone Star Conference have entered into a consulting agreement with the commissioner's office of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

The SWC will advise the Lone Star in eligibility cases, aid in arbitration of protests, provide interpretations of NCAA rules, and assist in the coordination of Lone Star activities for men and women.

The agreement, effective immediately, was signed for the Lone Star by Ed. D. Roach, president of West Texas State University, and by Fred Jacoby, commissioner, for the Southwest Conference.

Jacoby said, "We are pleased to have the opportunity to work with the Lone Star Conference in a consulting capacity. This is a unique situation."

"The Lone Star is a strong NCAA Division II conference," he said. "We will be working with LSC member institutions to assist with NCAA interpretations, legislation, officiating programs and educational programs. We hope this is the start of an outstanding relationship between our two conferences."

The Lone Star will pay $2,000 a month for the services. The contract is effective until December 31, 1989, and it will be automatically extended for six months unless either party provides written notice of its dissatisfaction with the partnership.

"We are fortunate to have a man of Fred Jacoby's stature and knowledge to assist us in the new consulting venture," Roach said.

O. S. Cauthen, president of the Lone Star Conference, said, "We are excited about our relationship with the Southwest Conference. We think it will be beneficial to both conferences, and we look forward to working together."

Cauthen is vice-president of Angelo State University.

Under terms of the agreement, the Southwest Conference commissioner's office will:

- Provide advice to enhance the coordination of Lone Star activities for both men and women;

- Provide a system to keep the president of the Lone Star informed on matters of direct interest to the conference and Division II athletics;

- Provide general advisory services, including aid in coordination of the planning and organization of schedules and championship events;

- Provide advice and assistance in the area of eligibility, including verifying the eligibility of conference athletes and supplying each conference institution with copies of eligibility forms;

- Aid in arbitration of protests, including review of situations; interpretations of bylaws, and recommendations for disciplinary actions, if any, to individuals, teams or institutions;

- Provide interpretations of NCAA rules and regulations and disseminate them to all member institutions;

- Administer the National Letter of Intent program for the LSC;

- Make available to Lone Star members seminars that are provided to SWC members;

- Attend LSC fall and spring meetings as an observer;

- Provide compliance and legislative interpretations to one representative for each Lone Star institution on an as-needed basis.

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News and the NCAA national office.

Q I saw a poster promoting the NCAA Division II Football Championship. How does someone get a copy of that poster? Does the NCAA produce other posters, and are they available to members or to fans in general?

A The NCAA has produced a series of championships promotional posters, which are available from the Association's communications department for $7 each (price includes shipping and handling). Institutions that sponsor the sports selected for championships promotional posters are sent two copies of the posters. Posters also are sent to the sites of championships for host institutions' and sponsoring agencies' promotional efforts. A list of championships selected for promotional posters is contained in the NCAA Sports Library publications catalog.

20-victory seasons don't guarantee tournament bid

By Hal Bock

The old recipe for reaching the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship was simple: Win 20 games and your invitation almost certainly will be in the mail.

The new recipe isn't very complicated, either: Win as many as you can and hope the victories are against good enough competition to impress the selection committee.

"The magic of the 20-victory deal is over," said James E. Delany, commissioner of the Ohio Valley Conference and one of the nine members of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee who spent last weekend locked in marathon meetings at Kansas City, Missouri, to complete the field. "The old formula is dead. Anybody who doesn't believe that really isn't paying attention," Delany said.

OK, then, pay attention.

If the committee simply was going to invite every team that reached 20 victories, it would have had a nearly full field—with teams from Akron to Appalachian State, from Ball State to Boise State—before it ever began the deliberations. Going into the final weekend of the regular season, 56 Division I teams had 20 or more victories, and 22 more teams were on the threshold of that plateau.

But not all 20-win seasons are created equally. The committee studies computer printouts that evaluate not only a team's won-lost percentage, but the percentages of opponents and where each team plays the majority of its games. These strength-of-schedule factors prevent any legitimate candidates from being overlooked.

"Some teams play 18 home games, and others play only 10," Delany said. "If two teams are both 17-10 and have played common opponents, the team that did better on the road may be valued more highly."

Then, there is the question of the quality of the teams you played. Runaway victories over Cupcake State are devalued. "The way the system works out," Delany said, "beating a weak team at home can lose its effectiveness and even reach a point of diminishing returns."

"Look back 15 years, and you'll find a lot of teams with much stronger records. That reflects two things—the numbers of quality teams and athletes are greater and the committee's policy to reward teams that upgrade their schedules. Any school that avoids strong opposition on the road is not doing itself any favors in the committee's eye."

So, if winning 20 games won't do the trick, what will?

Cedric W. Dempsey

Well, if you win the title in a conference that owns one of 30 automatic bids, you're in. That's how first-timer George Mason of the Colonial Athletic Association and Southwest Missouri State of the Association of Mid-Century Universities made it, well before the committee's deliberations began.

Also in early were Bucknell of the East Coast Conference, Creighton of the Missouri Valley Conference, East Tennessee State of the Southern Conference, La Salle of the Metro Atlantic Conference, Loyola Marymount of the West Coast Athletic Conference, Princeton of the Ivy League, South Alabama of the Sun Belt Conference, South Carolina State of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference and Robert Morris of the Northeast Conference.

None of those schools is ranked, and only La Salle received any votes in the latest Associated Press poll.

"You have to realize that 13 to 15 of the automatic bids are going to be teams below the computer rankings of the top 64 teams," said Cedric W. Dempsey, athletics director at No. 1 Arizona and chair of the committee.

Delany will be chair of the committee next year.

A fistful of other automatics were set before the committee ever arrived in Kansas City, and more fell in place after its meetings began. But four tournament championship games—the Big Eight, Pac-10, Southwest Conference and Metro Conference—were still in progress when the field was announced March 12. And the Southwestern Athletic Conference final game didn't even start until an hour after the selections were announced.

Besides Dempsey and Delany, committee members are Tom Butters, athletics director at Duke University; Kenneth A. Free, commissioner of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference; Fred A. Schaus, athletics director at West Virginia University; Roy Kramer, athletics director at Vanderbilt University; Thomas J. Frericks, athletics director at the University of Dayton; Chalmers W.

Big Ten transfer rule criticized

In response to the opinion of Mr. Samuel L. Becker, faculty athletics representative at the University of Iowa: The Big Ten Conference rule that requires community college transfers who initially failed to qualify as freshmen under NCAA eligibility standards to sit out one year after transferring clearly shows that the Big Ten members who voted to retain that rule are not looking at the picture clearly.

A student-athlete entering a four-year school under Bylaw 5-1-(j) (now Bylaw 14.3) requirements has to sit out only one year, while the same student entering a two-year school has to graduate with an A.A. degree and at least 48 transferable units. In some cases, the A.A. degree requires more than 48 units. Such is the case at Mt. San Antonio College.

Our students must earn 60 units, and 56 of those units must be transferable.

In some cases, this might take five or six semesters in which the student-athlete might use his redshirt year; then to have him sit out another year is totally unfair.

When is the Big Ten going to take the label of "Prop. 48" off the back of the student-athlete? Also, it's about time some four-year schools stopped looking down at the community colleges as second-rate. Many athletes got their start at a two-year school and went on to four-year schools. If they did not graduate, don't put all the blame on the two-year school.

The Big Ten should evaluate each community college transcript on an individual basis, not put all transfers in the same bag. The belief that there is too much pressure on a transfer to expect him to begin competition right away is ridiculous.

The transfer is older than a first-time entering freshman and has played two years of college athletics at a high level; he or she is more mature and already has learned how to succeed in college through guidance and career classes offered at the community colleges. Additionally, one of the main goals of most community colleges is to prepare the student for transfer.

This rule is just another trick to punish the "Prop. 48" student worse than Proposition 42 would. The implementation of this rule will limit the number of transfer athletes to the Big Ten. The community college transfer athlete does not want to sit out a year after proving himself or herself over a two- or three-year period at the two-year school.

'We'll be back—the right way,' SMU's Gregg promises

By Denne Freeman

The spring football healing process for Southern Methodist University began on a snow-fringed field March 7 with coach Forrest Gregg promising that the school will restore its former glory without cheating.

"Nothing that has happened is going to take away from what this place is all about, and we'll be back—the right way," said Gregg, a star tackle at SMU in the 1950s.

Tight end David Bearden wore a T-shirt saying "Do You Believe In The Second Coming?"

"I do," Gregg said. "I believe SMU will be back in the Cotton Bowl someday."

It's been two years on the sidelines serving hard time for SMU because of a slush-fund controversy that involved the highest offices at the proud university.

William P. Clements, now the governor of Texas, was among those involved in the fund while he was chair of the SMU board of regents.

A new school president, a new athletics director and a new head coach were hired in the fallout of the NCAA's first "death penalty."

On September 2, SMU plays Rice in a stadium that will be familiar only to those who followed Mustang football in the 1940s and early 1950s.

SMU won't be playing in 65,000-seat Texas Stadium, where Eric Dickerson and Craig James lit up the scoreboard. Instead, the Mustangs will compete in their red and blue on campus in musty old Ownby Stadium, which is undergoing a $1.5 million facelift.

SMU's team, with a thin roster, worked out this fall; but spring has brought an air of optimism to "The Hilltop."

"We're nervous today," said senior safety Norbert Osborn, a letterman on SMU's 1986 team, which was the school's last. "We're a little tight and feel the pressure. We know we have a game in six months."

The schedule includes Connecticut, North Texas and a November trip into the land of national champion Notre Dame.

SMU athletics director Doug Single said he didn't try to get out of the contract with Notre Dame, because "I wanted our student-athletes to thrill at the experience of playing in South Bend."

Elliott, athletics director at the University of Iowa; and Gary Cunningham, athletics director at California State University, Fresno.

Most of the obvious heavyweights fall into place rather quickly. The toughest part comes when the grid is almost full and there are four spots left, the last place in each of the four geographical regions. There are often 12 to 15 teams that are still on the bubble at this point.

The committee can spend as much as two hours on each of those four places.

Perhaps the greatest problem of all for the committee this year was the ECAC North Atlantic conference, which played its postseason tournament in privacy at the Hartford Civic Center. Spectators were prohibited because of a measles outbreak on the campuses of several member schools.

What slot on the tournament grid do you reserve for a team that might be contagious?

Bock writes for the Associated Press.

"That game will be interesting," Osborn said. "Maybe that's why coach Gregg has us running six miles a day."

SMU collected 25 scholarship signatures in February, but Gregg can't work with that group until August. The freshmen report August depend on them while the newcomers learn."

Gregg had 70 players last fall (17 on scholarship) who worked 10 weeks. He had 68 report March 7.

He recruited nine linemen who average 6-foot-4, 254 pounds, and the 25 new Mustangs who signed in

"SMU, which has had its problems with NCAA rules, checks every little thing now."

7 and the rest of the squad August 9.

"We upgraded our talent with this new class," Gregg said. "What you see this spring is not what you'll see this fall."

"Of course, the young men who were with us last fall and this spring will be very important. We'll have to February are smart. Six are members of the National Honor Society and six are in Who's Who of High School Students. Two received presidential academic awards.

Gregg, who played for Vince Lombardi in the NFL, stresses conditioning as the primary goal of spring workouts.

"We'll have to be in better condition than our opponents, because we're going to have fewer and younger people," he said. "I want to develop a team that doesn't make a lot of mental mistakes and plays 60 minutes every game. The only way you play this game is all-out every play of every game and every practice."

SMU has upgraded its eligibility requirements for its student-athletes. Gregg sees that as a plus.

"We're fortunate to be able to rebuild the SMU program in such a way that we fit the student-athletes we choose into our system," Gregg said. "We're not in a situation where we've inherited an existing scheme and had to make adjustments."

SMU will have a wide-open offense similar to the Mustangs' passing-circus days of the 1950s with Fred Benners.

"We will use the run-and-shoot offense," Gregg said. "We'll throw the ball a lot. We'll have a scheme designed to put a lot of points on the board. I think that will interest people."

SMU, which has had its problems with NCAA rules, checks every little thing now.

"A club team from England wanted to come over and work out with us," Gregg said. "We're so short-handed, we thought it was a great idea. Then we called the NCAA, and we were told it would cost us a game."

SMU has learned its lesson.

Tournaments feature prestigious coaching fields

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The 51st Division I Men's Basketball Championship boasts one of the most prestigious coaching fields ever, with three 600-game winners, five 500-game winners and 16 more with at least 300 career victories.

It is the last time around for Oregon State's Ralph Miller, who celebrated his 70th birthday March 9. His record is 674-369 entering the tournament, excluding vacated and forfeited games. He also is one of just six coaches in history to take three colleges to the Division I tournament. But he is one of many famous coaches who has never reached the Final Four.

North Carolina's Dean Smith, with an amazing 665-189 record, has made seven trips to the Final Four (second only to 12 by UCLA's matchless John Wooden), but none since his 1982 championship team. Four times since 1982, Smith's teams were second in the regional, just one victory from the Final Four. This is coaches in the 1989 field.

First time, long time

Four teams are in the NCAA tournament for the first time in school history—George Mason, McNeese State, Siena and South Carolina State.

Unless Stanford sweeps to the championship, one of the oldest trivia questions in basketball (i.e., name the only team that is undefeated in tournament history) will be a thing of the past. Stanford won the title in 1942 at 3-0 in its only NCAA tournament appearance. Everett Dean coached that team, and Jim Pollard was its top player.

Other "long-timers" are St. Mary's (California), making its first NCAA trip since 1959; East Tennessee State, its first since 1968, and Colorado State, its first since 1969.

First year, new job

Two coaches are making the NCAA tournament in their first year as a head coach on the four-year level. They are Idaho's Kermit Davis, youngest coach in the tournament at 29, and George Mason's Ernie Nestor.

Four more have previous head-coaching experience on the four-year level but are in their first year at their current jobs. They are Providence's Rick Barnes, Rutgers' Bob Wenzel, Texas' Tom Penders and UCLA's Jim Harrick. Penders took Rhode Island to the NCAA last year—his first NCAA in his 17th year as a head coach. Barnes was a first-year man (18-10) at George Mason last year.

First-timers who played

Fifteen coaches are in the NCAA for the first time. Two of them also played in the NCAA tournament. They are Evansville's Jim Crews, a substitute on the 1976 Indiana national-championship team—the last one in Division I to go undefeated (32-0) the entire season—and Robert Morris' Jarrett Durham, top scorer for Duquesne's 1971 team that reached the regional semifinals.

Crews also played on Knight's 1975 regional second-place team and his 1973 Final Four team that finished third, losing to UCLA in the semifinals. In all, he scored 32 points in eight NCAA games, 22 of them in 1973.

Durham averaged 21.3 points in three games and shot 68.4 percent from the field (26-for-38) in 1971. Duquesne beat St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) and St. John's (New York) before losing a one-point heart-breaker to Smith's North Carolina team. In 1969, Durham had 10 points against Pennsylvania in a first-round loss.

Crews and Durham bring to 69 the number who have both played and coached in the tournament (out of 451 tourney coaches in history, this year's newcomers included; the chart shows the other 13). Fifteen more of the 69 are in the current field.

Only five in history have both played and coached in the Final Four. Dick Harp, who both played and coached at Kansas (and now assists Smith), was the first. Then came Bones McKinney (North Carolina and Wake Forest), Vic Bubas

Arkansas wins sixth straight indoor track title

Arkansas won its sixth consecutive Division I Men's Indoor Track Championships team title by about 1½ feet.

With the 10 points he collected by winning the triple jump, the Razorbacks' Edrick Floreal gave his team a three-point margin of victory over runner-up Florida at the March 10-11 championships in Indianapolis. If Floreal's jump had been 19 inches shorter, he would have finished third in the event; and Arkansas would have come up one point short of winning the title.

Floreal, who also was runner-up in the long jump, collected 18 of Arkansas' 34 total points and made up for the points the Razorbacks lost when defending two-time 3,000-meter champion Joe Falcon was unable to score in that event.

"When Joe didn't win the 3,000, I knew I would have to win the triple jump if we were going to win the team title," Floreal said. "That kind of pushed me and motivated me. I went all out."

Despite finishing 13th in the 3,000 meters, Falcon still made a major contribution to the Razorbacks' cause by successfully defending his title in the mile run. Arkansas also benefitted from a third-place finish by Reuben Reina in the championships' first-ever 5,000-meter run.

Florida set two championships records in an effort that saw it come closer to beating the Razorbacks than any team since Arkansas' streak began in 1984. The Gators' Tyrone Kemp was involved in both performances as he set the new mark in the 400-meter dash (46.03 seconds) and anchored the 1,600-meter relay team to a record of 3:06.96.

In other meet highlights, a world's-best time of 7:17.45 was turned in by Clemson's 3,200-meter relay team of Michael Radziwinski, David Wittman, Philip Greyling and Terrance Herrington. The time does not count as a world record, because not all of the team's members are from the same country.

In addition, American records were set by Baylor's Michael Johnson in the 200-meter dash (20.59 seconds) and by Southwestern Louisiana's Hollis Conway, who successfully defended his high jump title with a leap of 2.37 meters (7-9¼ inches).

Dean Starkey of Illinois defended his pole vault title with an effort of 5.65 meters (18-6½) and John Scherer of Michigan won the inaugural 5,000-meter run in 14:18.05 to join Kemp, Johnson, Conway and the Clemson relay team as new owners of meet records.

Sprinter sparks LSU to women's indoor crown

Senior Dawn Sowell won two sprint events and anchored the world's fastest 1,600-meter relay performance to lead Louisiana State to its second team title at the Division I Women's Indoor Track Championships March 10-11 in Indianapolis.

The Tigers easily outdistanced Villanova, which finished second for the second consecutive year. Defending champion Texas finished in a tie for third place with Alabama after the Longhorns were unable to win any of the four individual events in which they had defending championships.

Louisiana State won four events in all, including a victory in the 55-meter hurdles by Tananjaly Stan-ley, and set meet records in three of the events (Sowell missed the mark in the 55-meter dash by six-hundredths of a second but set a record in the 200-meter dash).

The Tigers' 3:33.98 time in the 1,600-meter relay also was the fastest time ever run in the world, although it does not count as a world record because not all of the runners are from the same country. Joining Sowell in the effort were Americans Cheryl Wilson and Sylvia Brydson and Jamaican Opal Cunningham.

"This was the best race for me; I would rather do it as a team than by myself," said Sowell.

In fact, she credited her teammates with helping her overcome the extreme exhaustion she said she felt near the end of the race. "My team said, 'you can do it.' And this was my last race indoors, really the last race of my collegiate indoor career, so I thought, 'Go just go.'"

As well as the Tigers' relay team ran, it came out of the preliminaries with only the second-best time. Illinois' 3:36.21 mark in the 1,600-meter prelims survived the finals to stand up as the only women's American record recorded at the meet.

Among the seven individuals who set meet records at the championships was Villanova's Vicki Huber, who defended her 3,000-meter run with an 8:55.29 time. However, Huber was unable to defend her title in the mile, where she finished second to a record-setting 4:30.63 performance by Suzanne Favor of Wisconsin.

Also setting championships records were the trio of Oklahoma State's Jackie Goodman in the first-ever 5,000-meter run, Iowa State's Edith Nakiyingi in the 800 meters and Missouri's Natasha Kaiser, whose 51.92 mark in the 400-meter dash also broke the nation's collegiate record.

Villanova's victory in the 3,200-meter relay made it the only other school to win more than one event title at the championships.

Mountaineers win rifle title; women top shooters

CHAMPIONSHIPS

MURRAY, KENTUCKY

South Florida's Michelle Scarborough stole the spotlight from team champion West Virginia at the 1989 National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships, held March 10-11 at Murray State.

Firing in the final relay during the individual air rifle competition, Scarborough made 34 perfect shots before missing a bull's-eye and finished with a record 399 (400 is perfect). Only two of her 39 total 10s were close enough to require use of a scoring gauge, and the plug confirmed bull's-eyes both times.

In air rifle, competitors fire 40 shots—all standing—from a distance of 33 feet.

Alaska-Fairbanks' Deb Sinclair claimed the other individual championship by posting an 1,171 in smallbore—marking the first time in the 10-year history of the championships that women claimed both individual crowns.

While talk around the range centered on Scarborough's amazing performance and the women's performances in the individual events (women claimed two of the top 10 spots in smallbore and five of the top 10 in air rifle), West Virginia shooters quietly went about claiming the school's fifth NCAA rifle title overall and its second in a row.

Mountaineers Tammie DeAngelis, Gary Hardy, Web Wright and Ann Pfiffner set a championships record for team air rifle with a 1,563, and the team's aggregate total of 6,234 also set a championships record. West Virginia had set the old mark (6,229) in 1986.

Tennessee Tech's Dallas Smith set one championships record and tied another by posting a 389 (400 is perfect) in the kneeling portion of the individual smallbore match.

TEAM RESULTS

All-Americans in rifle announced

Half of the first-team spots on the National Rifle Association all-America teams announced March 11 in Murray, Kentucky, were claimed by shooters from West Virginia, which won the 1989 NCAA team title earlier that day at Murray State University.

Mountaineers Thomas Bernstein, Tammie DeAngelis, Gary Hardy, Kim Hogrefe, Ann Pfiffner and Web Wright were named to the air rifle first team; and Bernstein, DeAngelis, Hardy and Wright earned places on the smallbore first team. California teams dominate Division II swimming

Cal State Bakersfield and Cal State Northridge won big for the second year in a row at the Division II Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, held March 8-11 at Buffalo.

The gap between defending men's champion Cal State Bakersfield and Oakland widened a bit as the teams finished one-two for the third straight year. The 571-406 win gave the Roadrunners their fourth title in four years.

Cal State Bakersfield's Wayne Wehrli set a championships record in the 200-yard butterfly, and teammate Andrew Shattuck broke the 400-yard individual medley record. Another individual record was broken by Shippensburg's Brady Stauffer in the 200-yard backstroke.

Oakland's men's teams swept all five relay events, including a record time of 3:21.55 in the 400-yard medley relay. The old record of 3:22.37 was set by Oakland last year.

Cal State Northridge's women chalked up another team title—the school's fourth in the eight-year history of the meet. Coach Pete Accardy's Matadors easily claimed the title, outscoring second-place North Dakota by 117 points. Oakland, Army and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo followed in the standings.

The Matadors swept the breaststroke events for the second straight year with winning performances by Tina Schnare (1:04.83 in the 100-yard breaststroke and 2:20.18 in the 200-yard breaststroke). Northridge also finished big in the relays, winning four of the five events (North Dakota claimed the top spot in the 200-yard medley relay).

Winning four individual titles for the second year was Army's Ann Wycoff. The senior once again swam to titles in the 1,650-yard freestyle, 200-yard butterfly and both individual medley events. She defended her 1988 title in the 400 IM with a record-setting performance that shaved almost seven-tenths of a second off her time from last year.

St. Augustine's wins third straight II indoor title

St. Augustine's dominated the jumping events to capture its third straight team title at the Division II Men's Indoor Track Championships March 10-11 at South Dakota.

No other title contender came close to stopping the Falcons, who last year shared the title with Abilene Christian. St. Augustine's tallied 94 points to outscore runner-up Mankato State by 63.

Tarrell Carpenter set a championships record in the long jump to lead the Falcons in a sweep of the top three places in that event. Finishing behind Carpenter, who leaped 7.95 meters (26-1), were Mark Mason and Earl Randolph.

Randolph also was a champion for St. Augustine's. He won the triple jump with a mark of 15.56 (51-0¾). In addition, the Falcons' Darrin Moore and Ian Thompson finished first and second, respectively, in the high jump to give the Falcons a total of 52 points in the three jumping events.

St. Augustine's took a total of four titles, counting Kenneth Brokenburr's victory in the 55-meter dash.

The championships' only other meet record was set in the 1,500-meter run by Southeast Missouri State's Brian Radle. His 3:47.53 time broke the standard set last year by Peter Rono, who moved to Division I this year with Mount St. Mary's (Maryland) and finished second in the mile at that indoor meet behind repeating champion Joe Falcon of Arkansas.

The only successful defending champion among Division II men was Ashland's John Walters, who won his second straight shot put crown.

Southeast Missouri State's Laura Byrne wins 1,500 meters going away

Abilene Christian, led by double-titlists Mazel Thomas and Sylvia Dyer, successfully defended its team title at the Division II Women's Indoor Track Championships March 10-11 at South Dakota.

Thomas set meet records in the long jump and high jump and Dyer bettered her own mark in the triple jump to lead the Wildcats to a 21-point margin of victory over runner-up Southeast Missouri State. Dyer successfully defended titles in the triple jump and the 55-meter hurdles, while Thomas won the long jump for the second straight year. Thomas also was runner-up to Dyer in the triple jump.

Alesia Turner rounded out Abilene Christian's haul of five individual titles by winning the 55-meter dash.

Southeast Missouri State scored most of its points in the distance events, where the Otahkians' Laura Byrne won the 1,500- and 3,000-meter runs. Byrne and teammate Kelly Cracchiolo finished one-two in the 1,500.

Byrne also won the individual title at the Division II Women's Cross Country Championships last fall.

Kenyon women take sixth straight swimming crown

Kenyon College once again blew away the competition and claimed the Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships team title for the sixth consecutive year. The meet was held March 9-11 at the University of Notre Dame.

Kenyon's Kateri Mathews took first place in the 200-yard individual medley and swam on the winning 200-yard medley and 800-yard freestyle relays on the first day of the meet. The Ladies' time of 1:47.63 in the 200-yard medley relay set a national record.

The winning continued as Kenyon claimed two more relay events—the 200-yard freestyle and the 400-yard medley—on the second day of competition. Also, Melissa Nelson won the 400-yard individual medley to help the Ladies gain a sizable lead.

The squad's momentum continued as the team picked up three more titles on the final day of competition—including the 400-yard freestyle relay for a sweep of the relays for the fourth consecutive year.

Carrie Nealon won the 1,650-yard freestyle with a time of 17:12.56, and teammate Jeannine Gury claimed titles in both breaststroke events. The only other multiple winner was Hope's Shelly Russell, with No. 1 finishes in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles.

High school sports series on TV will not include national play-off

A new high school sports series on SportsChannel America will not include a national-championship basketball game opposed by many educators, the cable network said March 14.

SportsChannel America, which is available in 8½ million homes, said it will begin televising prep sports on a regular basis this fall under an agreement with the National Federation of State High School Associations.

The cable network did not reveal the amount of the five-year contract, but a source said the high school organization will receive $250,000 per year, the Associated Press reported.

"Interest in high school sports has grown enormously in recent years, and the federation felt that this heightened interest would be best served through a carefully conceived television agreement," said Brice Durbin, the federation's executive director.

"With the national exposure of high school athletics on SportsChannel America, we will be able to promote high school sports as an entertaining and worthwhile educational activity."

Last month, The New York Times reported that the TV contract might include a national-championship game in basketball. Scott Thomson, head of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said his group opposed the idea because it would "exploit students" and "place emphasis on the wrong values."

Durbin said his organization also remains opposed to a national-championship game. "That has always been our position and it will continue to be our position," he said.

SportsChannel, co-owned by Cablevision and NBC-TV, will televise about 25 high school events each year. Football and basketball will be the main focus.

The network said there will be no beer, wine or tobacco commercials during the telecasts.

Stricken coach returns to Utah home

Brigham Young University head golf coach Karl Tucker was scheduled to return to his home in Provo, Utah, March 14 after suffering a partial stroke several days earlier while accompanying his team to a Texas tournament.

Tucker's players discovered the 62-year-old coach in his hotel room early March 10 while the team was in the Houston suburb of The Woodlands for the Golf Digest Collegiate Invitational. Tucker was admitted to the intensive care unit of a local hospital in stable but guarded condition.

A BYU spokesman said Tucker suffered no paralysis but continued to have problems with slurred speech during a telephone conversation one day before the coach was to return to Provo. Tucker, however, has retained his "sense of humor" and is "very touched by the number of visitors he had in Houston," said Ralph Zobell, associate sports information director at the school.

The Brigham Young team still played in the tournament. Tucker's absence marked only the second time in his 28 years at the school that he has missed a tournament, Zobell said.

Tucker is scheduled to receive a complete examination after his return to Utah. It is not yet known when he will be able to return to his coaching duties.

Foundation names Baker a trustee

Merrily Dean Baker, NCAA assistant executive director for administration, has been elected to a four-year term on the board of trustees of the Women's Sports Foundation.

Elected with Baker were Anita DeFranz, president of the Amateur Athletic Foundation (a second term); Richard Ader, senior executive vice-president in charge of the real estate division of Integrated Resources Inc.; Frank Heffron, dean of the college of business administration at Fordham University; Nancy Hogshead, three-time gold medal winner in swimming at the 1984 Olympics; Lt. Col. Micki King Hogue, diving coach at the U.S. Air Force Academy, and Martha Rudolph, marketing director for the U.S. Biathlon Association.

LSU studies effect of proposed requirements on athletes

A committee has been appointed at Louisiana State University to look into the effect new academic policies under consideration would have on student-athletes.

Athletics director Joe Dean said, "There are a lot of factors in this. We have people saying that athletes must comply not only with the NCAA rules for eligibility, but with

Intent of bill is to protect referees

If you want to criticize the referee or the umpire in Tennessee, the legislature's message is clear: You can shout but you better not touch.

The Tennessee House March 9 passed by a 95-0 vote a bill to protect referees and umpires from physical assaults by sports fans. Rep. Tommy Head, D-Clarksville, said the measure would help protect the officials from punches, lawsuits and flying bottles.

Head, brother of University of Tennessee, Knoxville, women's basketball coach Pat Head Summitt, said the bill would allow school officials or owners of professional teams to prosecute fans for assault on referees, umpires or other officials, the Associated Press reported.

He said this would make it unnecessary for officials who might live elsewhere to return to the scene for trial.

"I think this is a good idea," said Rep. Karen Williams, D-Memphis. "But I don't think your bill does this. I think this is the law already."

Williams said present law allows school officials to prosecute fans for assaulting officials.

"Anyone who witnesses an assault can prosecute it under present law," she said. In any case, she said, the publicity may send a message to unruly fans.

Last year, parents filed a lawsuit to stop Tennessee's high school football play-offs because of what they felt was a bad call against their son's team. The suit was dismissed, but the Tennessee Secondary Schools Athletic Association had to hire a lawyer.

The bill was drafted by the TSSAA and makes a conviction on first offense a misdemeanor, punishable by a $50 fine and up to six months in jail. For recidivist fans, the bill calls for a $1,000 fine and up to a year in jail on second and subsequent convictions.

The TSSAA drafted the measure in response to violence at high school and junior high games, according to Bob Baldrige, assistant director of the high school sports association.

"We have had close to 40 instances this (school) year having to do with officials, administrators, coaches or players," he said.

The bill also applies to college and organized professional or amateur sports and has the support of athletics directors at Tennessee's major universities, Baldrige said.

McGinness gets federation post

Fritz McGinness will become associate director of the National Federation of State High School Associations August 1.

McGinness, currently an assistant director, has been on the National Federation staff since August 1977.

His responsibilities include the sport of wrestling and coordination of the National Federation of film production and printing operations.

the university's additional requirements as well. If we pass this, we would be the only school in the country requiring our students to have physics coming out of high school. Even MIT doesn't do that."

Dean said if athletes were required to take physics and a foreign language, it would hurt recruiting, the Associated Press reported.

"We already had a football recruit who told our football coach that if he had to take physics, he wouldn't come here," Dean said.

Under requirements that went into effect last fall, entering freshmen must have taken 17 specific academic units in high school, including physics and a foreign language.

The NCAA rules call for only an 11-credit academic core curriculum with a C average and a score of at least 15 on the American College

Joe Dean

Test (or 700 on an SAT), used to determine athletics eligibility.

Athletes now are exempted from making up the units not taken in high school, Dean said.

"Don't get me wrong, I'm all for academics; it's the reason we're here. But they're talking about making kids make up these courses on a college level if they put this rule into effect; not a high school level, a college level," he said.

Interim Chancellor Grady Bogue said the faculty committee studying the admissions policy is looking at the possibility of making it more flexible so it would recognize special talents as well as academic requirements.

"What the policy didn't address was what to do about students who don't meet requirements but have talents that make them ready for college, so we have asked the faculty to reexamine it," Bogue said.

Football coach Mike Archer refused to discuss the possible rule changes but said earlier that if the policies go into effect, LSU's academic program would become a lot tougher than those at other schools and could cause players to go elsewhere.

The effect of many of the proposed changes being considered would be minimal, however, according to the dean of the division of academic services.

"A decision to require physics would not amount to much, because what we do is specify that the course they have to take is Physical Science 1001, which is a basic science course. Adding a foreign-language requirement would just mean taking two semesters, and I think it would be an exaggeration to say that puts us in a bad position," said Dean Caruth McGehee.

Many major colleges require student to take courses including foreign languages and computer courses for graduation, McGehee said.

Coleman just got into shape.

When we set out to build a beverage cooler, we decided first to talk to the construction crews who'd use it — and abuse it.

They said a beverage cooler had to be able to bounce around a truck without leaking. It had to keep both liquids and cans cold on the hottest days. And it needed handles that wouldn't break off or pinch.

So we made ours of the toughest coldkeeping material. And gave them a square shape, so they'd cram into a truck and not rattle around.

We added insulated, locking lids, and strong, recessed handles that fold out to a comfortable position.

And we engineered a patented no-drip faucet that's extremely sanitary since the spigot's hidden from exposure.

We make both a general and an industrial line in 3, 5, and 10-gallon sizes. They're all OSHA approved. And they're all just one more example of Coleman staying ahead ... by making products the way people want them.

Georgia plans $3.5 million baseball park

The University of Georgia Athletic Board has approved the construction of a $3.5 million baseball stadium.

The board has directed that construction begin at the end of the current baseball season. The stadium will be built on the site of the existing structure.

"The baseball stadium is a much-needed project, and we are excited about this beautiful addition to our facilities," said Georgia athletics director Vincent J. Dooley. "It will give us an outstanding, state-of-the-art stadium and will help move our baseball program to even higher levels. We are eagerly awaiting the beginning of construction."

Plans call for stadium-style seating for more than 3,000 people. The grandstand area will be partly covered and will feature chair-back seating at field level.

Other attractions include a locker-room area and a fully enclosed team practice area. Plans also call for a spacious press area with separate radio booths and locations for as many as five television cameras.

Construction is scheduled for completion in time for the 1990 baseball season.

West Virginia has best combined record

By Todd Spangler

Maybe it is true that no one remembers runners-up, but despite key losses in football and basketball this year, West Virginia University fans are unlikely to forget the season in Mountaineer sports.

Even if West Virginia's basketball team loses March 16 to Tennessee in the first round of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship, the Mountaineers will end the year with the best combined winning percentage in Division I-A collegiate football and Division I basketball in the nation.

And that can't be changed, even if every other team playing in the tournament wins all five games and becomes national champion.

Don Nehlen's football squad lost its only game of an 11-1 season January 2 to mythical national champion Notre Dame. Gale Catlett's cagers lost in the Atlantic 10 semifinal to Penn State but still hold a 25-4 record going into the NCAA championship.

The combined record of 36-5 gives the Mountaineers an 87.8 winning percentage this school year.

Fred A. Schaus

The next closest is Oklahoma, 9-3 football and 28-5 basketball, with an 82.2 percentage and a 37-8 record. But if the Sooners, seeded atop the NCAA Southeast regional, win all their games, their 42-8 record will leave them at 84 percent.

If West Virginia loses to the Volunteers, the basketball and football teams have an 85.7 winning percentage over a 42-game combined season.

"Isn't that sensational," said West Virginia athletics director Fred A. Schaus, who will retire June 30 after eight years as AD. "I guess my timing was great when I came... and I guess my timing is good going out."

The 1988-89 school year will be remembered as the best WVU athletics has ever experienced.

"It has been a good, solid success over the last eight years; but yes, it is good to end it this way," Schaus said.

Besides West Virginia, only four schools have combined winning records better than 80 percent. They are Notre Dame (12-0 in football, 20-8 in basketball), 80 percent; Florida State (11-1, 22-7), 80.5 percent; Syracuse (10-2, 27-7), 80.4 percent; and Arkansas (10-2, 24-6), 81 percent.

Of these teams, only Arkansas could hit as high as 83 percent by winning the national championship.

Of course, awards aren't given out for combined records. Notre Dame will be remembered as the 1989 national football title-holder; if Tennessee were to win the basketball championship, no one would remember that it opened the football season with six consecutive losses.

But West Virginia fans will remember, even if everyone else forgets, that 1989 was the best year in the school's sports history.

LSU's Jackson, Arizona's Elliott top AP all-America teams

By Jim O'Connell

Chris Jackson, who stirred memories of "Pistol" Pete Maravich at Louisiana State, has become only the second freshman ever named to the Associated Press college basketball all-America first team. Arizona senior Sean Elliott was the lone repeater on the first team, which was announced March 13.

Joining Jackson and Elliott on the first team were seniors Danny Ferry of Duke, Stacey King of Oklahoma and Sherman Douglas of Syracuse.

The AP all-Americans were selected by the same national panel of sports writers and broadcasters that picks the weekly top 20. Each voter selected three players, with points distributed on a 5-3-1 basis.

Elliott, the 51st player to repeat as all-America in the 41 years a team has been selected, was the top vote-getter with 324 points and was named on the first team by 63 voters, just edging Ferry, 318 and 61, and King, 316 and 60.

Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma (1983) was the only other freshman selected first-team all-America. He went on to be a three-time selection before leaving the Sooners after his junior season.

Jackson is the nation's second-leading scorer at 30.1 per game, a mark that will break the freshman standard of 29.4 set by Fly Williams of Austin Peay in 1973. Jackson's 932 points already are a freshman best, and he also has managed 3.3 rebounds and 4.2 assists per game while facing a variety of defenses aimed at stopping LSU's most noted player since Maravich.

"We've played box-and-ones against some players," Georgetown coach John Thompson said recently. "Against Chris Jackson, we played a smaller box and had two guys chasing him."

The 6-8 Elliott, the Pac-10's all-time leading scorer, leads the top-ranked Wildcats in scoring (22) and assists (4.3) and is second in rebounding at seven. He is considered the perfect swingman, switching easily from forward to guard.

"A year ago, when he was playing with a veteran club, a great deal was required of Sean — but nothing like the load he's had this year," Wildcats coach Lute Olson said. "It's great to see this kind of recognition for a guy who, in my opinion, is the ultimate team player."

Ferry already has been to the Final Four with the Blue Devils, and the 6-10 forward averaged a team-leading 22.7 points and 7.4 rebounds while handing out five assists per game. He is the only Atlantic Coast Conference player ever to amass 2,000 points, 900 rebounds and 480 assists.

"Danny is probably the most high-profile player to come to Duke in the last decade," Blue Devils coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "He's exceeded my expectations on the court, and off the court, I think he's probably been the most publicized Duke student in the past decade. I think he has earned the honors coming his way."

King, a powerful inside player at 6-10, suffered a broken index finger on his shooting hand midway through the season, but it failed to deter him from registering averages of 26 points and 10 rebounds per game while blocking 70 shots and shooting 52.3 percent from the field.

"I think when you take into account (the fact that) he broke a finger on his shooting hand and had to suffer through that for eight weeks, he's had a miraculous season," Sooners coach Billy Tubbs said.

Douglas is the NCAA's all-time assist leader with 928, and he is 12 shy of becoming the Orangemen's first 2,000-point scorer. He averaged 18.3 points and 8.7 assists this season.

"I think Sherman is one of the greatest competitors I've ever been around," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. "He has earned everything he has gotten more than any player I've coached."

The second team was composed of seniors Pervis Ellison of Louisville, Glen Rice of Michigan, Mookie Blaylock of Oklahoma and Charles Smith of Georgetown and sophomore Jay Edwards of Indiana.

The third team included seniors Todd Lichti of Stanford and George McCloud of Florida State; juniors Hank Gathers of Loyola Marymount, the nation's leading scorer and rebounder, and Lionel Simmons of La Salle, and freshman center Alonzo Mourning of Georgetown.

Tournaments

(North Carolina State and Duke), Smith (Kansas and North Carolina) and Knight (Ohio State and Indiana).

Smith and Knight are the only coaches to both play on a championship team and coach a championship team.

Four others among the current 15 (besides Knight and Smith) played in the Final Four and coached in the tournament. They are Miller, Newton, Memphis State's Larry Finch and Loyola's (California) Paul Westhead. That leaves nine more played-and-coached men in the current field — Syracuse's Jim Boheim, West Virginia's Gale Catlett, Minnesota's Clem Haskins, UTEP's Don Haskins, Kansas State's Lon Kruger, Arkansas's Nolan Richardson, Georgetown's John Thompson, Texas' Tom Penders and Seton Hall's Peter Carlesimo.

Finch, Boheim, Catlett and Kruger played for the teams they now coach. Miller played at Kansas, Newton at Kentucky, Westhead at St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania), Clem Haskins at Western Kentucky, Don Haskins at Oklahoma State, Richardson at UTEP, Thompson at Providence, Carlesimo at Fordham and Penders at Rhode Island.

Finch, Boheim, Catlett and Kruger also are among 10 tournament coaches now at their alma maters. The others are Bob Wenzel of Rutgers, George Felton of South Carolina, Joey Meyer of DePaul, Bill Frieder of Michigan, Tommy Joe Eagles of Louisiana Tech and Norm Stewart of Missouri, whose team is at the party while he recovers.

Wenzel, Clem Haskins, Penders, Colorado State's Boyd Grant and UCLA's Jim Harrick are taking a second college to the NCAA. That makes 81 coaches who have taken two different colleges to the NCAA.

Meyer five-for-five

This is five NCAA tournament teams in his first five years as a head coach for DePaul's Joey Meyer, reports Jim Hagn, DePaul assistant SID, and he correctly reports that this is exceeded only by Fred Schaus, who started his coaching career six-for-six in NCAA trips at West Virginia from 1955 through 1960. Schaus, now the athletics director at West Virginia, was second in 1959 to California, coached by Pete Newell. After 1960, he became a pro head coach.

Most-improved race

Ball State enters the tournament tied with Hawaii for first place in the race for the national most-improved title. Both are up 13 games over last season. Hawaii plays at

Jody Conratt

Jarrett Durham

Joey Meyer

California (also on the most-improved list) March 16 in a National Invitation Tournament game. If Hawaii loses that game, Ball State needs just one NCAA victory to clinch the most-improved title (and the reverse is true for Hawaii).

Ball State is 28-2 vs. 14-14 a year ago (14 more wins and 12 fewer losses is 26; divided by two), while Hawaii is 17-12 vs. 4-25.

Four more NCAA entrants are on the most-improved list — Rutgers, West Virginia, Providence and McNeese State.

Women's coaching Who's Who

Nearly all the top coaching names in the seven-year history of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship are on hand for the eighth annual party. Once again, one could write a history of the tournament by putting a dozen or so current tourney coaches in one room with a tape recorder.

The coaches who led 20 of the 28 teams in the semifinals and finals since the first tournament in 1982 are on hand, plus 22 of the 28 teams that lost in the regional finals, or one victory from the Final Four.

That is 42 of the top 56 teams in tournament history, or 75 percent.

Coaches of the last three champions are on hand — Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore last year, Tennessee's Pat Summitt in 1987 and Texas' Jody Conratt in 1986. That means the first four are missing, but Barmore was a top assistant to Sonja Hogg on Tech's 1982 champions, and the coaches of six second-place teams are on hand to talk for the missing coaches.

Southern California's Linda Sharp, coach of the 1983 and 1984 champions, did not make it this time. Also missing is Marianne Stanley, coach of Old Dominion's 1985 champions. She has moved to Pennsylvania. But all the coaches Sharp and Stanley defeated in the finals are here.

Long Beach State's Joan Bonvincini, Western Kentucky's Paul Sanderford, Maryland's Chris Weller, Auburn's Joe Ciampi, Georgia's Andy Landers and Iowa's Vivian Stringer all have reached the national semifinals or finals, or both, and are ready for another shot at the championship.

Several others have reached the regional finals, one victory from the national semifinals. The 1989 coaching chart shows the complete list.

Summitt has a 21-6 tournament record, Barmore 20-5, Conratt 15-5, Bonvincini 14-7 and Landers 12-7.

First-time teams, coaches

With tournament expansion to 48 teams, 11 colleges are in the tournament for the first time. They are Connecticut, West Virginia, Cal State Fullerton, Cincinnati, Hawaii, Temple, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Purdue, Miami (Florida), Oklahoma State and Northwestern State (Louisiana).

The list shows 12 coaches in the tournament for the first time, most of them heading the first-time teams.

Five in all seven

Five teams now have been in all seven NCAA women's tournaments. They are Louisiana Tech, Tennessee, Long Beach State, Georgia and Mississippi.

McGuire to receive Balfour award; silver anniversary team selected

Frank J. McGuire, who won coach-of-the-year honors at St. John's (New York), North Carolina and South Carolina, will receive the 1989 National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Balfour golden anniversary award for more than 50 years of service to basketball. McGuire and the NABC silver anniversary team will be honored at an April 2 dinner in Seattle.

Members of the silver anniversary team distinguished themselves in college basketball 25 years ago and have gone on to prominence in their professional careers.

Headed by Georgetown University men's basketball coach John Thompson, the 1989 squad also includes Jay L. Buckley, Duke University; Melvin G. Counts, Oregon State University; Dr. Robert I. "Rick" Kaminsky, Yale University, and Barry D. Kramer, New York University.

Biographies of the honorees follow:

McGuire had a winning percentage of more than 70 percent during a college coaching career that spanned more than 30 seasons. A 1936 graduate of St. John's, he coached at his alma mater from 1948 to 1952 and led the Redmen to the 1952 NCAA championship game. He coached at North Carolina for the next nine seasons. The Tar Heels won the national championship in 1957 and completed the season with a 32-0 record. After spending a season with the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association (NBA), McGuire returned to college coaching. He spent 16 seasons at South Carolina. He was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 1977.

Buckley

Buckley was a two-time academic all-America at Duke. He helped lead the Blue Devils to Atlantic Coast Conference championships and Final Four appearances in 1964 and 1965. After graduation, he attended Johns Hopkins University on a National Science Foundation Fellowship and earned a doctorate in physics. He has been a project manager for General Electric's Astro-Space Division since 1977. This division builds research instruments and satellites for NASA contracts.

Counts

Counts was a second-team consensus all-America at Oregon State. He is one of the Beavers' all-time leading scorers with 1,973 points. Counts was a member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic basketball team that won a gold medal. He played professional basketball from 1964 to 1976 and was a member of two Boston Celtic teams that won NBA championships. He is a realtor in Oregon.

Kaminsky

Kaminsky captained Yale's basketball team as a senior and averaged 24.9 points per game. A two-time all-Ivy League selection, he attended the Baylor College of Medicine. He is one of 24 urologists in the United States who are recognized by the American Urological Association as teachers and trainers for extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy, a process for crushing kidney stones. He resides in Houston.

Kramer

Kramer was a two-time all-America at New York University and had a career scoring average of 22.5 points. In 1962-63, his junior year, he ranked second in the nation in scoring with a 29.3 average. Kramer earned a law degree from Albany Law School of Union University. He is a partner in the Schenectady, New York, law firm of Higgins, Roberts, Beyerl and Coan, P.C.

Thompson

In 15 seasons at Georgetown, John Thompson has led the Hoyas to an NCAA championship and three Final Four appearances. He is approaching the 400-win milestone at Georgetown. He served as the coach of the 1988 men's U.S. Olympic basketball team. Thompson was the New England player of the year in 1964. He led Providence College to two National Invitation Tournaments and one NCAA tournament appearance. He played on two championship teams with the Boston Celtics. Thompson also serves as a special adviser on urban affairs to Georgetown's president.

Hats off to Horan

Suffolk University sophomore Brian Horan sports one of 11 hats signifying the number of times this season he scored the hat trick (three or more goals in a single game). Horan finished the regular season with 55 goals and 33 assists for 88 points. He broke five school scoring records as the Rams posted a 19-6-1 record.

Another record

Another regular-season softball attendance record was set when 3,357 paid to watch Fresno State defeat UCLA 2-0 in the FSU Pepsi Softball Challenge Tournament in Fresno February 26. The previous record of 2,583 was set February 14, 1988, when the same teams met in a season-opening double-header in Fresno. Fresno State ranked No. 2 going into last month's contest against No. 1-ranked UCLA, which had not been scored upon previously.
